

ANDREW WELLING

BIO

Andrew Welling (born January 2002) is an LGBTQIA+ composer studying and working in Virginia, USA. He has participated in numerous collaborations with musicians and artists and his music explores identity, acoustics, and perception. He is heavily inspired by artistic, philosophical, and scientific concepts.

ARTIST STATEMENT

"I am passionate about the exploration and application of different microtonal techniques and the investigation of intersections between the arts and sciences. I believe in the proliferation of new music through collaborative, constructive, and inclusive interactions. My music is shaped by my life experiences as a queer composer, which are articulated through an ever evolving artistic lens. As I continue to grow as an artist and human being, I hope that by sharing my ideas I can make a meaningful impact on someone somewhere in the world."

EDUCATION

Andrew Welling is pursuing his BA in Music Composition at James Madison University, 2020-2024, studying with Eric Guinivan and Jason Haney
After earning his bachelors, he will be seeking post graduate education.

ACHIEVEMENTS AND EXPERIENCES

Impulse New Music Festival 2022

2329 Collective collaboration, 2021

Madison Excellence Award 2020-2024

2019 George Mason University advanced composition and theory summer program with Frank Tichelli and Mark Camphouse

WEBSITE/ MEDIA

www.andrewwelling.com

@andrew_welling_music

CONTACT

andrew.welling.music@gmail.com

PUBLISHING

Andrew Welling Music
(ASCAP)